

Operatives of the Ogun State Police Command have arrested a 25-year-old suspected leader of the Alora cult, Abiodun John, with an illegal firearm during a routine stop-and search duty along the Akute/Olambe Road in the Ifo Local Government Area of the state. The command's spokesman, Omolola Odutola disclosed this in a statement sent to journalists on Friday.

Odutola said John was reportedly arrested on Thursday at about 3:30 p.m. following a tip-off by some members of the public that indicated suspicion against him and other partners travelling inside a Venza car with dealer number URSMOT AUTOS 4657DLA.

She said that based on the information, the police officers from the Ajuwon Division swiftly pursued the car and stopped it. During the search of the vehicle, two locally-made pistols and three live cartridges were discovered in John's possession.

CH SPORTS EX
The statement partly read, —The Divisional Police Officer Ajuwon has arrested the leader of the Alora cult and confiscated a firearm found in his possession during a routine search inside the vehicle he was driving at the time of his arrest. —On January 9, 2025, at about 3:30 pm, Ajuwon police officers were conducting a lawful patrol and performing stop-and-search duties along the Akute/Olambe Road when they received information from the public regarding two men suspected to be inside a Venza car with dealer number URSMOT AUTOS 4657DLA. —Immediately the information was intercepted, the officers pursued the vehicle, which was eventually stopped in front of the Osaro Mobile Filling Station. One suspect identified as Abiodun John, a 25-year-old male from the Olori area of Akute, was arrested, while another suspect remains at large. —During the search of the vehicle, two locally-made pistols and three live cartridges were discovered in John's possession.||

The statement noted that a preliminary investigation had commenced, and the suspect had been taken to the station along with the seized items.

The case will soon be transferred to the State Criminal Investigation Department, Eleweran, Abeokuta, the state capital, for further investigation.

Operatives of the Odeda Division of the Ogun State Police Command have arrested two men, Akintoye Waris and Ajayi Yusuf, for allegedly stealing and slaughtering a Savannah he-goat valued at N200,000 for his child naming ceremony.

The state Police Public Relations Officer, Omolola Odutola, on Saturday, revealed that the duo was arrested on January 2, 2024, in the Odeda Area of the state.

The suspects had allegedly invaded a farm in the area to steal the goats, having ensured that the farm owner known simply as Mark had taken the cattle for grazing on December 25.

Odutola stated that after discovering one of the goats was missing upon his return, a search was conducted in the community.

During the search, the police said some villagers confirmed seeing the two suspects with the missing goat on a motorcycle, heading toward Olodo town.

The command noted that while acting on the tip-off, detectives were immediately dispatched, leading to the arrest of the suspects in the early hours of January 2, 2025.

Odutola said, —During interrogation, the suspects confessed to the crime, explaining how they stole, transported, and later slaughtered the he-goat on December 27, 2024. —They disclosed that the goat was used to prepare food for the naming ceremony of Akintoye Warris's daughter, which was held at Olodo. The suspects are currently in custody and undergoing further investigation at the Divisional Crime Branch.||

She assured the concerned residents that the suspects would be prosecuted in court once the investigation is concluded and added that any further developments in the case would be communicated in due course.

The Economic and Financial Crimes Commission has detained 10 officers from its Lagos Zonal Command over allegations of theft of operational items.

The development, according to the agency, is part of an ongoing internal investigation aimed at maintaining transparency and integrity within the agency.

The arrest and detention of the officers were ordered by the EFCC's chairman, Ola Olukoyede, as part of a broader initiative to address corrupt practices and unethical behavior among the commission's personnel.

The detained officers are currently answering questions regarding their inability to account for certain operational items that were reportedly missing under their watch. —The officers, who were arrested last week on the directives of the Executive Chairman,

Mr. Ola Olukoyede are answering questions related to the theft of some operational items that they could not account for,|| a statement on the EFCC's X account said on Wednesday.

On Monday, The PUNCH reported that the EFCC dismissed 27 of its officers for fraudulent activities and misconduct.